

sent, Amarinder Singh, the freedom fighter's selfless sacrifice remains an inspiration for Indians even today.

He recalled the incident of Udham Singh keeping a bottle of blood-soaked Jallianwala Bagh soil next to his pillow, for years, out of sheer grief at the tragic killings of innocent Indians.

able to think of taking daily bath. It is a costly affair and we have rescheduled our bathing to twice a week," said M Meena, a Dalit activist residing at Indira Nagar in Adyar.

The month of May is described as the season of Agni Nakshatram (Tamil for the burning star) because of the high temperatures recorded in the State. Mercury crossing the 42 Degree Celsius mark is a routine event during the Agni Nakshatram days which last throughout the month of May. While the nouveau riche of the city leave for places as far away as Europe and the US to escape from the scorching sun, the upper middle class prefer places like Yercaud, Ooty and Kodaikanal in the State itself which offer salubrious weather.

The summer and the water shortage is certain to take a heavy toll in the State's agriculture, according to R V Giri, president, Consortium of Indian Farmers' Associations. "The farming operations for the short term Kuruvai crop has to commence in mid-June and it is certain that this year also we will be forced to skip it," said Giri over telephone from Virudachalam.

Tamil Nadu's lifeline continues to be River Kaveri which originates in Karnataka and meanders through the districts of Tiruchirappalli, Thiruvavur, Thanjavur, Nagapattinam and Cuddalore before getting discharged into the Bay of Bengal. "But Kaveri has dried up as there
